The pugilistically-inclined public's opportu nity to judge of the fighters' form came last night when Suilivan boxed at a testimonial benefit at the Clermont Avenue Hink, Brooklyn, and Corbett did likewise at Madison Square Garden, this city.

The Brooklyn Rink was far from being crowded, but about three thousand of the champion's admirers yelled themselves hoarse in greeting him, and drank state oked bad cigars until the atmos phere was botter than an oven and stumer the crowd patiently endured the half dozen ordinary bouts that preceded John L's ap pearance with his sparring partner, Jack Ashton, and then pandemonium broke loose. CORRETT AT THE GARDEN.

Five thousand people went to Madison Square Garden last hight to get a look at Pugillet James J. Corbett, who thinks he is clever enough to down the Big Peolow from Boaton. Very tew who saw him came away impressed with the idea that the champion was in any danger of looing his laureis.

The event of the evening, the bout between Corbett and his sparring partner, Jim Dally, was reserved until the end of the show. Meanwhile the crowd had to set through a monotonous series of most uninteresting bouts between a number of local puglistic lights of more or less fame, usually less.

When Corbett came late the ring in fighting costume a shout went up from the multitude, which continued for several minutes. Corbett seemed to be in the very pink or condition, and was trained down so fine that his muscles stood out in hard knots all over his body. But although he is admirably proportioned and shows marvellous skill in dedying the blows o. his adversary while landing his own with lightning-like rapidity, it is evident that as far as solicity of trawn and muscle go he is not in it with Sullivan.

This fact impressed almost every one present who had ever-seen the champion in full fighting trim, yet at the same time Corbett was admired for the pluck which he has shown in tacking so formidable an antagonist as Sullivan, and the well-wisnes of the crowd went with him.

The two bouts which he fought, first with Meyer and them with light and the well-wisnes of the crowd went with him.

onist as Sullivan, and the well-wisnes of the crowd went with him.
The two bouts which he fought, first with Movey and then with paly, were interesting as exhibitions of scientine fisticules and gave Corbett an opportunity to dispusy some of the ne points in his style of fighting. He got in one or two upper cuts on Paly just at the close which elicited enthysiastic application.
